Searching the shipping and passenger lists

From the drop-down list, select the required type of search:-

Passenger arrivals to search all of the passenger lists for a person or family,

Passenger lists to search for a particular full passenger list of South Australian settlers, or

Shipping arrivals for the arrival date and details of a ship's voyage, or all the ship arrivals for a particular day (yyyy-mm-dd), month (yyyy-mm) or year (yyyy).

If you do not get the expected results, read our more detailed help article on advanced searching of our databases.

If the passenger list you require is not in this database, see our directory of other SA shipping & migration resources.

Passenger list notes

1. The sources of passenger lists for this early period are extremely inconsistent - the variations which could not be resolved are included, those in brackets considered less likely. A name in brackets with a question mark is a suggested possibility only, which needs further investigation by the user prior to acceptance or rejection. Please advise us of any errors or omissions, giving the sources of your information.

[2. Only a few original passenger lists survive, so it has been necessary to use other sources. Even these original lists are only as accurate as the literacy of the recorder and passengers supplying their details allowed. The ship manifests are even less accurate because they are transcriptions of the original lists onto the cargo manifests. Similarly, the newspaper listings are transcriptions. The applications for a free passage suffer from the same problems as the original passenger lists. Then there is the difficulty of reading the old handwriting, which sometimes introduces further errors. Sources \[1\], \[6\] and \[7\] are quite unreliable, but have not been excluded because at times they are the only sources of the information. In addition, \[4\], \[7\] and \[8\] often provide given names and maiden names not found elsewhere. For more information, see the article on the accuracy of family history sources.](#)

3. Where feasible, all accompanying offspring including adults are given in each family, unless married. These are listed separately with their own families. Children are listed in chronological order of birth if known.

4. Many of the ships returned to South Australia multiple times with passengers. In several cases there was more than one ship with the same name.

Acknowledgments

1. Grateful thanks to those who entered and checked the early local shipping data.

2. Thank you to the generous volunteer who has provided numerous additions and amendments over the years from various sources, especially arrival information from obituaries & biographies, and Tasmanian departures for SA.

3. Thanks to the SA shipping researcher who has supplied additional data and pointed out discrepancies needing attention.

4. And thanks to all other contributors of new and revised data.
